

PEN

PEN SUBMISSIONS NOW OPEN

Are you a writer/ actor/ director/ performance maker interested in work that explores socio-political themes?

PEN is a bi-monthly new writing night featuring politically motivated work curated by award-winning Pennyworth Productions.

Alongside the Arcola in London PEN is also hosted by a number of other major regional theatres. Our aim is to create a national network of artists making political work.

PEN is open to work in varying stages of development and all work featured on the evening will be classed as :

CHALK- PENCIL- PEN

-  CHALK: The outline of a project- A writer has submitted an idea/ script to Pennyworth who have then found them a director and cast for the evening.
-  PENCIL: The beginnings of a collaboration- Projects where some of the team are already in place (be that a writer and director or an actor and writers). Pennyworth then finds them the needed additional collaborators for the evening.
-  PEN: Ready to go, just on a hunt for a venue/ more gigs. The evening provides people at this stage of development with a short showing of their work. Get our audience talking and interested in you and your ideas!

If you are keen to get involved, we want to hear from you!
